Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

Claims 1,4,6, 9, and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Smith (6,114,402).

Smith disclose the preparation of polyurethane foams useful in applications as set forth by applicants' claims prepared from isocyanates, polyols, blowing agents, catalysts, and other additives prepared in the presence of hydroxyethyl acrylates in amounts as claimed by applicants (see example 6, as well as, the entire document).

As conceded by applicants' own specification, amine group containing compounds are groups which are inherently formed through natural weathering and aging of foamed polyurethane products resulting from the cleavage of urethane groups. Accordingly, the remaining hydroxyethyl acrylates residing in the structure of the polyurethane products of Smith would inherently react with the formed amines resulting from natural weathering and aging of the foamed products so as to form the products defined by claim 6. Thus, claim 6 is not seen to be distinguished from the teachings of Smith.

Claims 1,4,6, 9, and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by the equivalent Asako et al. (JP-06,336,513) & (5,668,187) patent documents, each taken individually.

Asako et al. disclose the preparation of polyurethane foams useful in applications as set forth by applicants' claims prepared from isocyanates, polyols, blowing agents, catalysts, and other additives prepared in the presence of hydroxyethyl acrylates in amounts as claimed by applicants (see the JP-'513 abstract and the entire document of US-'187).

As conceded by applicants' own specification, amine group containing compounds are groups which are inherently formed through natural weathering and aging of foamed polyurethane products resulting from the cleavage of urethane groups. Accordingly, the remaining hydroxyethyl acrylates residing in the structure of the polyurethane products of Smith would inherently react with the formed amines resulting from natural weathering and aging of the foamed products so as to form the products defined by claim 6. Thus, claim 6 is not seen to be distinguished from the teachings of Smith.

It is held that residual unreacted monomer would remain in the reactive mixtures of Asako et al. such that the products and processes of applicants' claims are inherently met by the teachings of Asako et al. The residual amounts are additionally seen to fall within the lower endpoint values of applicants' claim 4 which is seen to be a value met by negligible amounts.

Applicants' arguments and amendments, including new claim 10, have been considered. However, rejections are maintained.

The language in the claims as amended only require the capability to perform the function defined and do not serve a distinguishing effect for the claims. Applicants' have not shown the claims to distinguish based on their defined ranges of amounts of the indicated compounds. It is maintained that the cited references sufficiently provide for preparations of articles containing these compounds of applicants' claims in amounts within the ranges of values of the claims as they currently stand. Applicants have not shown their ranges of amount values to distinguish over the amounts of the compounds which reside in the articles prepared by the cited prior art.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
